Audiovisual Materials for Preservation Education

Compiled by Susan Escherich

Here is the first edition of a list of Audiovisual Materials for Preservation Education. We are attempting to provide a comprehensive source for information about materials available for loan, rental or purchase which may be used in preservation education. The list should become more complete as more producers become aware of its existence and contact us. The database is intended to include the full range of available materials, from detailed demonstrations of correct repair procedures for historic building fabrics to general introductions to preservation philosophy and practice. Due to space limitations, we have not included the multitude of materials produced about the history of specific sites, nor have we included materials related to the curation of museum objects. Each of these subjects would fill an entire database by itself. We have, however, included materials which use specific locations to illustrate programs, techniques or styles of architecture. The audiovisual materials may be aimed at craftspeople, practicing architects and architectural students, preservation professionals and advocates, school children and adults.

To obtain the listings, universities, state historic preservation officers, units of the National Park Service, the American Institute of Architecture and producers of audiovisual material known to relate to historic preservation were contacted. Every effort will be made to keep the list current. Other producers and distributors are invited to send current listings of their preservation related audiovisual materials to: National Park Service, Preservation Assistance Division, P.O. Box 37127, Washington, DC 20013-7127, Attention: Susan Escherich. If you would like a brief review of your material included in the listing, please send a review copy to Ms. Escherich, noting whether you would like the copy donated to the library of the National Trust for Historic Preservation at the University of Maryland or returned to you.

Listors will automatically receive the updated list. Others wishing to receive it should contact the Editor, CRM, National Park Service, Preservation Assistance Division, P.O. Box 37127, Washington, DC 20013-7127.

The list is in three parts: 1) a brief description of materials available, by title; 2) list of materials by main subjects; and 3) the addresses of distributors.

Susan Escherich is with the Preservation Assistance Division, National Park Service, Washington, DC.
