

Manhattan Project

National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

National Historical Park
New Mexico, Tennessee, Washington

Los Alamos Manhattan Project National Historical Park Audio Description

From the street, the wide sidewalk slopes gently up to the one-story, tan stucco building that houses the Visitor Center. On each end, a short wing extends out towards us. The entrance is located in the section to your left. The flat roof overhangs the corner with the entrance and then covers the sidewalk as it continues along the front of the building. The front of the left wing has large windows along the front. The single door has a lever-style handle and opens inward. The bottom half of the door has a map of the Los Alamos sites. The information desk lies straight ahead as you enter on the far side of the room.

End of Description.